Summary : Free roman attitudes toward the christians pdf download - john granger cook investigates the earliest interactions between roman authorities and christians the events in claudius time surrounding chrestos and possible jewish christians are fascinating but obscure the persecutions of nero and trajan may be crucial for interpreting certain texts of the new testament including the gospel of mark 1 peter and the apocalypse scholars have become increasingly skeptical of a persecution of the christians during domitian s rule and the evidence is not strong the rescript of hadrian did little to change trajan s policy with regard to the christians although the texts provide no evidence for a general law against the christians probably no such law existed until the time of decius they do give some indication of the way magistrates characterized constructed christians to nero and his prefects the christians were arsonists and harbored intense hatred of the human race to pliny and trajan they were people who did not supplicate our gods
