Summary : Free on the side of the angels pdf download - the holocaust demands a rethinking of spirituality both human and christian traditional definitions of spirituality that focus on the human capacity for self-transcendence in relation to an ultimate horizon of meaning whether or not that ultimate horizon is called god are inadequate after the holocaust to the degree that they make ethical responsibility a secondary consideration because the unthinkable has in fact happened a contemporary spirituality must locate ethical responsibility for the other at the heart of human subjectivity and self-transcendence the extreme suffering of the incarcerated and murdered as well as the ethical engagement of the rescuers cry out for a newly articulated spirituality that defines self-transcendence primarily as ethical responsibility this study also contributes to a contemporary discussion situated at the nexus of philosophy and spirituality this discussion seeks to characterize spirituality by using terms other than the traditional categories of being such an approach may reveal the contours and dynamics of a spirituality springing from the ethical consideration of the other this study defines spirituality as fundamentally self-transcending ethical engagement in which the subject enacts himself or herself into the fullness of his or her humanity this new perspective stresses ethical engagement over the ontologically-based conceptual categories found in traditional philosophical or theological anthropologies
